

Occupational Health & Safety policy (OH&S)

A healthy and safe work environment is a major strategic focus for Stenger & Ibsen. We strive to create a stimulating workplace for all employees, where the risks of occupational injury and work-related ill-health are prevented.

Stenger & Ibsen regularly review our operations and evaluate our efforts in the OH&S field. Our goal is always to improve and minimize the risks of incidents and accidents.

Our goals and direction of the business must be clear and well known by both our employees and all Stenger & Ibsen's subcontractors.

We must carry out systematic OH&S work where the results of our own and our subcontractors' OH&S work are constantly improved.

We always comply with applicable laws and regulations where all our operations are ongoing. It is highly important to have an open dialogue and receive feedback from employees and interested labour market parties.

Participation and cooperation are natural features of the business to make Stenger & Ibsen's workplaces safe and secure. It is natural that the employee's knowledge, skills, and experience are used and that there is an opportunity for continued development.

The managers and supervisors coordinate and drive the ongoing OH&S activities, creating a good and safe work environment with the involvement of the employees and shared responsibility.

Work community and job satisfaction are promoted. We aim to have satisfied employees, who enjoy working for Stenger & Ibsen, due to the major focus on continuously maintaining and improving a healthy and safe work environment. It is of high importance that the right resources are available, and the work is organized so the employees experience balance in their work situation.
